TWO LITTLE PAIRS OF BOOTS.

Two little pairs of boots to-night
Before the fire are drying;
Two little pairs of tired feet
In a trundle bed are lying.
The tracks they left upon the floor
Makes me feel much like sighing.

Those little feet with copper toes!
They run the live-long day;
And often times I almost wish
That they were miles away;
So tired am I to hear so oft
Their heavy, tramp at play.

They walk about the new-plowed ground,
Where mud in plenty lies;
They roll it up in marbles round,
They bake it into pies,
And then at night upon the floor
In every shape it dries!

To-day I was disposed to scold,
But when I look, to-night,
At those little boots before the fire,
With copper toes so bright,
I think how sad my heart would be
To put them out of sight.

For in a trunk up stairs I've laid
Two socks of white and blue;
If called to put these socks away,
O God, what should I do?
I mourn that there are not to-night,
Three pairs instead of two.

I mourn because I thought how nice
My neighbor cross the way
Could keep her carpets all the year
From getting worn and gray;
Yet well I know she'd smile to own
Some little boots to-day!

We mothers weary get and worn
Over our load of care;
But how we speak to these little ones
Let each of us beware,
For what would our firesides be to-night,
If no little boots were there!

THE DIFFICULTY ABOUT THAT DOG.

BY JOHN QUILL.

This was the cause of all the trouble:

LOST.—On the 19th instant, a small Terrier Dog, with a brass collar upon his neck, and the tip of his tail gone. Answers to the name of "Jack." Five dollars reward will be given to the person who returns him to JOHN QUILL, No. 81 Rickety Row.

I inserted the above in the Daily Flipflap, in the hope that I might recover the animal, to which I was much attached. The Flipflap goes to press at 5 a. m. At half-past 6 I was awakened by a pull at my door bell. I got out of bed and opened the window. As I looked out I saw a man standing in my front yard with a mongrel dog, tied to a rope. He gazed up and observed:

"Hello! are you the fellow who lost a dorg?"

"Yes, I am."

"Well, then, I've fetched him," said the man.

I then explained to this wretched human being that my dog was a terrier, while his looked more like a log of wood with the bark off and propped up on four sticks, than a dog of any kind.

"Well, ain't you a going to take him?"

"I wouldn't have him as a gift. And I want you to move off now, or I'll call the police."

"Now I guess you think you're smart, don't you? I'd bust you over the jaw for five cents, I would. You don't know a good dorg when you see him, you don't," and he went out, after ripping the pailings off the fence.

In about a half an hour there was another ring at the bell. I went down. There was a man with six dogs of a variety of breeds.

"Wh-wh-which of 'em's him b-b-boss," said this feller, for he stuttered as if he would strangle on a small syllable."

"Neither of them."

"Y-you said his n-nname was J-Jack, didn't you?"

"Yes that's it."

"W-well then, wh-wh-what d'ye call th-that?" says he, as he sung out "Jack" and the whole six dogs looked up and wagged their tails like a lot of spavined oxen in fly time.

"Why, I call it confounded nonsense to expect me to take the whole six dogs because they're named Jack. I don't want to start a sausage mill, you understand. Mince meat isn't in my line."

"W-w-well, aint you goin' to take him?"

"Certainly not, do you suppose I am a gibbering idiot?"

"W-w-w-well, you sh shant have him now if you want him. I w-w-wouldn't trust a decent d dog with a m-m man like you anyway."

And the six canines fell into line and trotted down the street after him.

I had not got fairly into the house, before there was another ring. Seedy-looking man with a semi-decayed yellow dog. His ribs stuck out so, that he looked as if he had gorged himself with a spiral spring.

"You advertised for a dog, I believe Well, I caught him around here in the alley after a desperate struggle. Fine dog, sir."

"Well, I don't think he is. He looks to me as if he wasn't well. He is too ethereal for this world, young man, depend upon it."

"Oh not at all sir. Only shedding his coat sir; all good dogs do at this time of the year."

"See that sir," said this seedy Caucasian, holding the dog by the cuff of the neck. "See how he yelps; that's a sign of pluck; that dog would fight a million wild cats, he would, and lick 'em too, sir."

"Get out!" I exclaimed, and the dog put his tail between his legs and ran for the gate.

"See that, sir? see that?" said the man, as he seized him, "that's a sign he's well trained; no raw dog behaves like that, I want you to know. Now, s'pose you fork over that five."

"Not much! I don't want him, my friend."

"You won't do it? Well, then, take him for seventy-five cents, and say no more about it. He's a valuable animal. You'll never get another such a chance."

"I tell you I won't have him."

"Well, don't then," said the man, as he kicked the animal over on my flower pots and broke three of them, while the brute dashed madly down the middle of the street.

Just then a big ruffian in a slouch hat came up with a bull dog, sprung in the knees, and lamenting the entire loss of his tail. When the ruffian spoke to him he wagged the whole of the last half of him.

"I've brought that there dog," was the observation made by the ruffian, "and I'll finger them there stamp, I reckon."

"My friend, said I, "that is not my dog."

"Yes it is, though."

"But it is not."

"Don't I tell you it is? Didn't you say the tip of his tail was gone? Well, jest look at him, will you?"

"Well, I won't have him, anyhow."

"You want to cheat me, do you? I'll fix you. S-sick him, Bull!" said this outrageous ruffian, as the dog flew at me, giving me barely time to get inside and shut the door on his frontispiece. I guess I squeezed the nose off that dog. But the man cursed for about five minutes, and then flung a brick at the door and went away.

In less than twenty minutes another ring. Small pox-marked man in a red shirt this time. Had a speckled dog that looked as if he had been out without an umbrella when it was raining ink. Says this victim of the small-pox:

"You know that dog you advertised for? Well, here he is."

"O,pshaw!" said I, "you know that isn't my dog."

"Your name's Quill, ain't it?"

"It is," said I.

"Well, then, this here is the dog.—He's the best ratter you ever seen.—Sling's them around like he was amusing hisself, he does, and——"

"But he is not my dog."

"And he is a bully watch dog Look at him! Look at him now—he's watching now! Why, he'll sit there and watch and watch, until he goes stone blind, he will. He'll watch all night if you only let him. I guess I'll just chain him up while you go in and get the V."

"No, you needn't," said I. "I'll blow his brains out if you don't take him away."

"Well, say, stranger, I'm a little strapped to day; just lend me five on him this morning, will you? I'll pay you to-morrow."

"See here, now, you just get out of here, or I'll take the hide off of you," I said, for I began to get excited, you know.

"Aw! you ain't worth a cent, you actually ain't," said the pock-marked man, as he walked off, after clipping the dog over the head with one of my fence pailings, and then putting his fingers up to his nose.

Not a minute after, up comes a man with a mastiff as big as a small horse.

"Say, boss, I want that five," was all he remarked, by way of introducing the subject.

"Well, you can't get it, and if you don't leave I'll call the police," I exclaimed in despair.

"Watch him Zip!" said the man, instantly, and the dog flew at me, threw me down and bit a slice of muscle out of my leg, and disfigured me for life. Then the assassin who owned him called him off and went away laughing.

I didn't answer any more rings that day, but about 4 o'clock in the afternoon I looked out of the second story window, and the yard was full of men with all kinds of dogs. Black dogs, white dogs, yellow dogs, variegated dogs, flea-bitten dogs, dogs with tails, dogs without tails, rat terriers, bull pups, poodles, fox hounds, spaniels, Newfoundlands, mixed breeds, pointers, setters, and a multitude of other varieties, all growling, yelping, barking, snapping and jumping about until there wasn't a flower pot left in the place, and the noise was worse than a menagerie at meal time.

I haven't got my dog yet. I don't want him either. I don't care if I ever see another dog between this and the silent grave. I only wish that all the dogs from here to Russian America were collected into a convention, and had hold of that man with the mastiff, that they might gnaw on him until he had not a morsel of meat left on his skeleton. That is all I want in the dog line in this world.

LIVE AND BE HAPPY.—It is the easiest thing in the world to be happy if men and women would only think so. Happiness is only another name for love; for where love exists in a household, there happiness must also exist, even though it has poverty for a close companion. Where love exists not, even though it be in a palace, happiness can never come. He was a cold and selfish being who originated the saying that "when Poverty comes in at the door, Love flies out at the window;" and his assertion proves conclusively that he had no knowledge of love, for unquestionably, the reverse of the axiom quoted is nearer the truth. When poverty comes in at the door, love, true love, is more than ever inclined to tarry, and do battle with the enemy. Let those who imagine themselves miserable, before they find fault with their surroundings, search in their own hearts for the true cause. A few kind words, or a little forbearance, will often open the way to a flood of sunshine in a house darkened by the clouds of discord and unamiability.

TO CONSUMPTIVES EVERYWHERE.—A correspondent of a Georgia paper writes as follows:

"Having seen much suffering from consumption, and knowing that thousands of dollars are yearly spent by invalids traveling for their health, and on medicines and physicians, we propose a simple recipe by which patients may become their own physicians, and if not too far gone, will guarantee a perfect cure if made and regularly taken according to directions. The ingredients are hoarhound, mullein and molasses, ingredients that are within the reach of all, the mullein growing wild in every field, the hoarhound in every garden, and the molasses can be had at any grocery. The directions for making are, to take a large handful of hoarhound and boil as strong a tea as can possibly be made. Take up and then boil an equal amount of mullein in the same way. Take a teacupful each of mullein and hoarhound, mixed together in a suitable vessel; then add a cupful of molasses and stew to a syrup—the quicker the better.—Take a teaspoonful three times a day. Be particular in following directions as to making, and also as to taking it, and we shall guarantee relief in all cases not too far advanced The writer does not claim this recipe as original with himself, but has recommended it in many cases with good result. As the ingredients are common and easily obtained, it is not best to make more than a quart at a time, particularly in warm weather, as the fresher it is the better effect will be produced Papers of the country will confer a blessing on this, alas! too numerous class—north, south, east and west—by publishing the above recipe

Last sensation—"Shoo-fly."

True Stories about Dogs.

A King Charles Spaniel belonging to a family in Gloucestershire, England, was very clever and docile. Every evening he would fetch his towel and brush, and stand patiently to be washed, combed and brushed by his mistress. Generally he was accustomed to take his meals with the family, but if his mistress were going to dine from home, she used to say to him: "Prince, you must go and dine at the rectory, to-day." The dog would set off for the rectory—a long, crooked, and puzzling road—and reach there in time for dinner. There he would wait until he had taken his supper, and return home as he came.

There was once an honest Londoner, who by misfortune became very poor. But in his poverty he never neglected his dog. He would share every crust with him, and often he would go hungry himself and buy a penny bone for his patient friend. At last an accident made the good man perfectly blind. Then his faithful dog took care of him, leading him safely through the crowded London streets. He was always attentive to his master, and when any kind passer-by threw him down a piece of money, he would take it up in his mouth and put it into the blind man's hand. The dog was so clever in finding these pennies when they rolled out of sight or were buried in the mud, that a great many persons threw down a penny just for the fun of seeing him find it. In this manner he really supported his dear old helpless master.

Once a Scotch shepherd was tending his sheep on the Grampian hills. His faithful dog and his little boy, three years old were with him. The little fellow could not climb the steep hill, so his father left him on the plain, gathering flowers and berries, while he went high up on the jagged rocks to overlook his flocks. Suddenly a very heavy fog came up. The shepherd hastened to seek his child, but the mist was so thick he could not find him.—In vain he called and whistled: neither the child nor dog made any answer. The poor man got lost also, and at last, after wandering for hours, he found himself near his own home. The neighbors listened to his story and eagerly went with him in search of the child. Day after day they scoured the country in every direction, but the poor fellow could not be found. Then the distracted father began to ask questions about the dog. Where was he? Had he been home at all while they were out on their hopeless search? Yes, he had run in the house two or three times a day, just to get his regular allowance of cake, and after taking a little bite he had run away with it in his mouth. This he had been doing for several days; but the poor, heart-broken mother had been in too much trouble to mention it. As soon as the shepherd heard this, he waited for the dog to come. The faithful fellow came at last, slowly and painfully, as if he had hardly strength to walk; but he would not eat more than a little piece of his cake, and again went off bearing it in his mouth. The father followed him. At last he came to a fall of water a short distance from where the child was lost, and from this place he began to go down a hill that was so steep and full of rocks that the strong man could not get down without great difficulty. Once down, the dog turned and went into a cave hidden in the bushes. With a beating heart, the father hastened to the spot, and, looking in, he saw his little son sitting there eating heartily of the cake, while the dog stood by barking with joy. How the little fellow got down there, no one ever knew; but he was found alive and well. The dog, who had never left him night and day, except to run home to get him a cake, had saved him from starving. We may believe that the noble animal was well fed and nursed that night; and that grateful prayers were sent to heaven from the shepherd's cottage.

The House-Fly.

How many of our readers are familiar with the early history of the common house-fly, an insect that makes its appearance in early spring in countless swarms, coming from some unknown locality, and disappearing almost as mysteriously? There are few insects at once so familiar to all, and yet the natural history of which is so little understood; and it may not be amiss, therefore, to recount a few facts which have been ascertained in regard to it.

The order of Diptera, to which our fly belongs, is one of great extent, and its members, in their different forms, include many of the greatest pests in existence, both to man and animal.—The musquito, the knat, the biting-fly, and the horse-fly, the tsetze, zimb and other species, are well-known illustrations of this statement, many of them being armed with lancets and other forms of aggressive weapons, by means of which they become a source of torment. The house-fly, however, although provided with a somewhat similar apparatus, does not use it commonly so as to draw blood, its offensiveness consisting principally in the pertinacity with which it insists upon crawling over the skin or in infesting articles of food.

The eggs of the house fly are laid in decaying vegetable matter, such as dead leaves, and especially in, manure of stables, about seventy or eighty being the usual number. These soon batch, and the larva grows rapidly feeding upon the substances found near it. After a short time the other skin hardens, and becomes brown and tough, forming a case shaped like a little barrel divided into rings. The transformation of the larva is quickly made, and the animal is soon ready to emerge as a perfect insect.

The common blow fly is another species of this order, which lays its eggs on decaying flesh, and which sometimes hatch before leaving the body of the parent, and in any event very soon become developed into the larvæ. These form the well-known maggots which are the annoyance of housekeepers in hot weather.

A fly similar to the house-fly in general appearance, but with the wings diverging more widely when in a state of rest, is provided with a very powerful lancet by means of which blood may be drawn in an instant after settling upon the body of an animal. It is a curious fact that this species, like the mosquito, in alighting upon an upright surface, uniformly rests with its head upward, the true house-fly occupying a precisely opposite direction, or with the head downward, thus affording a ready means of distinguishing them.

The house-fly, both as grub and perfect insect, furnishes food to a great variety of other animals; but the destruction of the adult is largely due to the growth of a parasitic fungus which attacks it, and, developing rapidly in its interior, soon exhausts its vitality. —Harper's Magazine.

A RASH PROMISE.—The Portland Argus tells the following story of a young lady who is a pupil at one of the schools in that city, and who has already, it seems, beaten her father at mathematics:

She modestly proposed that if her father would give her only one cent on one day, and double the amount on each successive day for just one month she would pledge herself never to ask of him another cent of money as long as she lived. Paterfamilias, not stopping to run over the figures in his head, and not supposing it would amount to a large sum, was glad to accept the offer at once, thinking it also a favorable opportunity to include a possible marriage dowry in the future. At the twenty-fifth day he became greatly alarmed, least if he complied with his own acceptance he might be obliged to be "declared a bankrupt on his own petition."

But at the thirtieth day the young girl demanded only the pretty sum of $5,368,709,12! The astonished merchant was only too happy to cancel the claim by advancing a handsome cash payment for his folly in allowing himself to give a bond—for his word he considered as good as his bond—without noticing the consideration therein expressed, and by promising to return to the old custom of advancing smaller sums daily until otherwise ordered.

Our arithmetic reporter has been "figuring on to it," and says that if the old gentleman had fulfilled his promise, his gushing daughter would have had, upon receipt of the thirtieth payment the snug little sum of $10,436,517,43.

Schunlendomovitchewegin means love, among the Choctaws—almost anywhere else, a word of that size would mean business.

A simple "card" may profitably stand for years without changing; but a sensation advertisement should be changed as often as you can get the printer to do it.

Mrs. Stanton's advice about choosing a wife is: "Always look for a girl with good teeth, for the teeth are a sample of every bone in the fair one's body."

Mrs. John Meckins, residing in Chester, Delaware county, gave birth to seventeen pounds of children—two girls, five pounds each, and one boy, seven pounds. The little ones are said to be bright and pretty.

A Quaker once hearing a person tell how much he had felt for another who was in distress and needed assistance, drily asked him: "Friend, hast thou felt thy pocket for him."

IT costs nearly as much to govern the city of New York, under Democratic rule, as it does to govern the United States, under Republican rule. As figures wont lie, look at them, Democrats, and then ponder over the assertions you read about Republican extravagance in your Democratic newspapers. For the United States it costs, $23,972,352 80, and for the city of New York, $23,920,295 32.

SENATOR CAMERON prophesied in an interview with Jeff. Davis, just prior to the war, that slavery would have ceased from the moment the first gun was fired upon the flag of our country, and that (Davis') seat would some day in the justice of God be occupied by a negro. He now thinks that the tide of war would have gone against us had it not been for the 200,000 negroes who came to the rescue.

☞The death of Hon. Anson Burlingame, which occurred at St. Petersburg, on Wednesday last, was caused by congestion of the lungs, after an illness of five days. He had only a few days previously arrived in Saint Petersburg from Berlin, Prussia, on his Chinese mission. His wife and family were with him at St. Petersburg when he died. The deepest sympathy was expressed for them by the Empress and Emperor of Russia, and by Minister Curtin and his family, and other American friends. The deceased was born in 1822, and was consequently only 48 years of age. His sudden death, has occasioned a profound sensation in the three great divisions of the globe—Europe, Asia, and Africa.

☞Orders have been issued from the War Department to abolish military rule in Mississippi.

The Colored People Represented in the United States Senate.

The colored gentleman elected a Senator by the Mississippi Legislature, was admitted on Friday last by a strict party vote—yeas, 48 Republicans, nays, 8 Democrats. Revels occupies the seat once occupied by Jeff. Davis, immediately in front of Mr. Scott. Two years ago but very few over expected to look upon such a picture, but the "decrees of Providence" cannot be successfully resisted for all time. We expect to live to see a woman also occupy a seat in the U.S. Senate—why not? The way is now opened up to the colored people for any public position, and they have a right to demand recognition in the local, county, district, State and National political conventions of the party or parties they may vote with. The Republican party has given the negro the ballot,—has given him a seat in the United States Senate and upon the Supreme Bench, but to control the colored vote, the colored people must have a share of all offices down to borough Constable. There is no use rebelling against the "decrees of Providence."

☞We hear of quite a political Selkirk in Oneida, Brown county, Wisconsin, viz, Mr. Edward A. Goodrough, who states, in a petition to Congress, that he is the only citizen of the said Brown county. All his neighbors are Indians; he supposes "that none but citizens are expected to sign petitions; and he unanimously petitions for the abolition of the Franking Privilege." Bravo, Mr. Goodrough! If there be a Mrs Goodrough in those wild and desolate regions, we lay aside all objections, and propose that she be presented, by special enactment, with the right of suffrage. This will lend interest and excitement to the town meetings, always supposing that Mr. and Mrs. Goodrough take different sides, as we have no doubt they would.

IRON ORE IN PENNSYLVANIA.—The production of iron ore in Pennsylvania for the year 1869 has been as follows:—Pig iron, 965,000 tons for 1869, against 872,000 tons in 1868; increase, 93,000 tons, the sales of the product being about $34,000,000 or very little beyond the lesser quantity of last year. From forgeries and bloomeries, 31,000 tons; rails, 280,000 tons; other forms of manufactured; 271,000 tons; increase, 21,000 tons. The added value on the manufactured article may be fairly estimated at $35,000,000 showing a total productive value of fully $69,000,000, with an increase in total quantity from 1,424,157 tons to 1,563,000 tons.

THE BORDER CLAIMS.—Speaking of the payment of the Border Claims for damage committed during the rebel raids in this State, "Invisible," of the Altoona Radical, mentions the following:

"I know men in Chambersburg who made money by the rebel burning. I know a young man, a mechanic, just married, with but two small rooms, who received nearly $2,000 for furniture destroyed, and he had no piano, either. I know of others who laid in claims for clothing they never owned. I saw a bill for losses in which was a steel watch chain valued at ten cents and a half-worn pair of suspenders put down at eighteen. This is sober earnestness."

☞The House of Representatives at Harrisburg, last week passed the following: That the act, entitled "An Act to exempt sewing machines belong to seamstresses in this Commonwealth from levy and sale on execution or distress for rent," approved April 17, A. D. 1869, shall from and after the passage of this act apply to all sewing machines used and owned by private families in this Commonwealth: Provided, That this shall not apply to persons who keep sewing machines for sale or hire.

Burning of the Steamer Emma.

The steamer Emma No. 4 struck a snag in the chute opposite Island 35, on Saturday morning, Feb. 19th, about ten o'clock, and while sinking slowly careened and upset the stoves setting fire to the cabin and driving every person into the water except Captain James Maratta, who was saved by clinging to the wheel, and the mate, Caleb Maratta, Pilot Attenborough, three passengers, the head chambermaid and head cook, who managed to remain on a small strip of the forecastle, sheltered behind some casks of iron, which they kept from burning by throwing water upon them with their hats. The officers launched a yawl and succeeded in keeping back the affrighted passengers until the ladies on board, five in number, were in it, and as many passengers as was considered safe. Before the yawl could be detached from the steamer the flames burst out with such fury that others could not be restrained, and they jumped into the swamping yawl and turned it bottom upwards, by which all the ladies were lost, and some twenty others. The survivors except those saved on the bow and on the wheel, managed to reach the shore on doors, planks and cotton bales, and were picked up by the people along River avenue and by the steamer Columbia, which brought a number to the city. Other survivors were taken to farm houses in the neighborhood and have not yet arrived. Engineer Lyonberger died from exhaustion after reaching the shore; also a passenger named McFarland. The steward, James Ford, is not expected to live from the same cause.

Speaker Blaine on the Public Expenditures.

General Grant's Administration Compared with that of Andrew Johnson.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Washington, D. C, Feb. 21, '70.

MY DEAR SIR: In the confusion which has arisen in some of the public journals about estimates and appropriations and disbursements, the impression has been created that General Grant's Administration has expended more money in the same time than its immediate predecessor. This is totally erroneous, as the balance-sheet, on a comparison of official figures, will clearly establish. The present Administration has been in power nearly a year, and we compare that period with the closing 12 months of President Johnson's administration.—From March 1, 1868, to March 1, 1869, the total receipts into the Treasury were a little over three hundred and sixty-eight million dollars—I avoid fractions for the sake of perspicuity. Every dollar of this was expended, and the public debt for the same period increased about six million dollars, as appears from official publications of the Treasury Department, thus showing a total expenditure for the year of three hundred and seventy four dollars ($374,000,000.)

The total receipts into the Treasury for the first year of General Grant's administration, estimating for the few remaining days, will amount to three hundred and ninety-four million dollars. (394,000,000). Out of this sum total eighty millions have been applied to the payment of the public debt, thus leaving for the current expenditures of Government, including interest on the public debt, three hundred and fourteen million dollars (314,000,000), or sixty millions less than was expended in the same time by President Johnson's administration. These figures are taken from official records and their accuracy cannot be questioned.

It will be observed that the receipts were twenty-six millions (26,000,000) more in General Grant's first year than in Mr. Johnson's last year. Over twenty million dollars of this must be credited to the internal revenue, which has been much more faithfully collected; for it will be noted that this large increase in amount has been derived from diminished and contracted sources of taxation, many of the taxes in force during a part of the year 1868–9 having been repealed before President Grant came into office. Whether regard, then, be had to the fidelity with which it is expended, the comparison for the past is undeniably and overwhelmingly in favor of the present Administration.

For the future the fullest confidence may be indulged. The House of Representatives is vigorously seconding the efforts made by Mr. Dawes, the able and upright chairman of the Appropriation Committee, to curtail expenditure wherever it may be done; and I am very sure that for the ensuing year Secretary Boutwell will exhibit a financial record even more satisfactory to taxpayers than that of the year which is about to close.

Very truly, yours, J. G. BLAINE.
W. T. JOHNSON, Esq., Augusta, Me.

A Miss not A Miss.

Mrs. Dr. Walker, having occasion recently to pass up the Missouri river, was interviewed at New Madrid by the editor of the Record, and in the course of her conversation the Doctor related the following incident of her war experience in Georgia:

I frequently rode outside our lines and visited the farm houses, where I found much destitution among the women. The men were generally absent in the Confederate army, or had fled at our approach. I administered to a great many sick among those destitute Georgians. On one occasion I called at the house of an old lady who was sick, and had quite a pretty young daughter living with her. I prescribed for the old lady, and furnished her with medicine and some needed delicacies, and gave her great and speedy relief. At her request I remained all night, and, there being no vacant bed in the house, slept with the daughter. Soon afterwards I was called upon to visit a very sick young man in the same neighborhood By proper medical treatment and attention he was soon convalescent and I suddenly became very famous in that neighborhood. Exaggerated accounts of my skill and learning were noised abroad, and reached the ears of the old lady just mentioned. Not long after I was overtaken by night outside of the lines, and called upon the old lady for another night's entertainment. To my surprise she seemed reluctant and hesitating, and then said:

"Look here, I'm afeard of you; I'm afeard to let you sleep with my daughter again, for I am afeard you ain't a woman; I don't believe any woman could know as much about doctoring folks as you do."

I tried to disabuse her mind of such an impression, but she only shook her head and said, "I'm afraid—I'd rather not." At length I unfastened my hair and, shaking it out upon my shoulders said:

"Look there, did you ever see a man have such hair as that? Is not that a woman's hair?

"Oh, I don't know, said the old woman, "folks has got a curious way of fastening hair on their heads in these days, and maybe its just fastened there. I'd rather not let you sleep with my daughter any more. You know too much for a woman." I tried other means with better success, and greatly relieved, the old lady again put me in her daughter's bed.

Women may hold meetings and talk and prate of wrongs until the crack of doom; but this matter will not be helped until they prove that they honor and respect labor for labor's sake, and learn to show no less respect, at any rate, to the girl who sews for a living than to the fine lady who rolls thro' the street in her carriage. Labor must be honored in the first place, and then women must be taught to fill places of labor with honor. Girls must be taught that it is as disgraceful and contemptible for them to loll and laze about the house as it would be for their brothers to idle and lounge in street; that a woman loafer is as bad as a man loafer—then some reformation may be expected, and not till then.

Protection for Miners.

The following is a synopsis of the bill passed by the legislature providing for the health and safety of persons in coal mines. The bill is a lengthy document, covering some seventeen pages of printed matter, and very carefully prepared. Sections one and two provide that the owners of coal mines shall make a full and accurate map of the workings of the same, on a scale of one hundred feet to the inch, and shall deposit said map with the inspectors of collieries for the district within four months from the passage of this act.

Section three provides that four months after the passage of this act it shall not be lawful for the owner or agent of any anthracite coal mine or colliery worked by or through a shaft or slope, to employ any person in working within it, unless there are in communication with every seam or stratum of coal worked in such coal mine or colliery, for the time being at work, at least two shafts or slopes, or outlets, separated by natural strata of not less than one hundred and fifty feet in breath, by which distinct means of ingress and egress are always available to the persons employed in the coal mine or colliery; but it shall not be necessary for the two shafts, slopes or outlets to belong to the same coal mine or colliery, if the persons therein employed have available means of ingress by not less than two shafts, slopes or outlets, one or more of which may belong to another coal mine or colliery.

Section 5 enacts that in cases where the provisions of the act are neglected the Courts can issue an injunction prohibiting the working of the mines where such violations occur.

Section 6. The owner, lessee, operator or agent of every coal mine or colliery shall erect or provide at or near the mouth or entrance to such mine, and maintain the same at all times when men are employed in such mine, a suitable building or buildings supplied with soft water, and properly lighted and warmed, for the use of the men employed in such mine, to wash and change their clothes when entering the mines and when returning therefrom.

Section 7. The owners or agents of every coal mine or colliery shall provide an adequate amount of ventilation, not less than fifty-five cubic feet per second of pure air, or thirty-three hundred feet per minute for every fifty men, and as much more as circumstances may require, which shall be circulated through to the face of each and every working place throughout the entire mine, to dilute and render harmless, and expel therefrom the noxious, poisonous gases to such an extent that the entire mine shall be in a state for men to work in; and a mining boss shall be appointed to oversee the arrangements for ventilating, to see that loose rock is carefully secured against falling, that the arrangements for signalling from the bottom to the top and vice versa are good. He and his assistants shall carefully examine the mines every morning, and watch to prevent explosion or evil effects of foul air.

Section 11 provides that none but competent, sober engineers shall be employed.

These are the main features of the act. In addition to them it provides that the Governor shall appoint three persons as mine inspectors for Luzerne and Carbon counties. The remaining sections of the bill simply define their duties.

The following amendments were added:

Requiring the driving of shafts (or second openings to each mine) at once, with three sets of hands, working 24 hours.

Fining operators $500 for employing boys under twelve years of age.

Fining $500 and imprisoning not more than six months any engineer who leaves or refuses to operate his engine when men or animals are in the mine.

Authorizing widows to maintain actions for damages.

A Sad Case.

A Man by mistake Digs up the Body of his Wife, and Throws it Outside the Burying Ground.

The particulars of a sad case of mistaken identity are related by the Syracuse Courier:—It seems that a short time since the wife of a wealthy man died near Shepherd's Station, and was buried in the Potter's Field. Then followed the death of a woman of questionable character, whose remains were also laid in the same field by kind hands. The funeral of the erring one was attended a few weeks since. A few good Samaritans laid her to rest. They did not pay particular heed as to the place where the tainted one should lie. It happened that she was buried near the wife of "Dives," and the poor and rich would have quietly slept their last sleep side by side had not other events taken place. Again the angel of death visited the rich man's elegant dwelling, and this time his arrow pierced a shining mark. A much loved and beautiful daughter was stricken down, and again the father mourned the loss of another loved one. She was buried beside her mother, as the father supposed. Owing to the inclement season of the year, no headstone had been raised over the graves of the mother and daughter. The friends of the fallen sister did not design to mark her grave, but were willing her name should be forgotten.

After the last funeral had taken place, the father began to question in his mind whether or not his daughter had been buried in the proper place beside her mother. He examined the locality carefully, and finally concluded that the woman of questionable reputation slept between his loved ones! The matter preyed upon his mind to such a degree that it gave him no rest day or night. Considerable time had elapsed, so that there was no opportunity of ascertaining by reference to the bodies whether or not such an error had been made. The father finally took a spade, and, proceeding to the burying-ground, avowed his determination of digging up the body of the woman of bad character. He did so, and threw the body and coffin outside the burying ground!—The neighbors were incensed at this action, and gathered about the remains the next day. One of them happened to pick up the plate of the coffin, which was so covered with rust that the letters were quite unintelligible. Diligently he scraped the plate and finally he was able to distinctly make out the name thereon, and behold, the husband had dug up and cast to the winds the remains of his own wife!

Of course, all of the remains that could be gotton together were decently interred again beside her daughter. Our informant is a respectable citizen of the above locality, and vouches for the truth of his statements.

The Indians.

A Desperate Fight—Over One Hundred Indians Killed—Stealing Expedition.

OMAHA, Feb. 23.—A late letter from Fort Tully reports that Little Swan, a Minneconga Sioux Indian, just arrived at the Cheyenne agency, near Fort Sully, gives the particulars of a desperate fight between about five hundred Sioux and Crow Indians, about the middle of January, above the mouth of the Yellow Stone river, on the Missouri. It appears that a party of 30 Crows came on foot to steal horses from the Sioux, and met two of the latter tribe, one of whom was killed and one wounded. The latter managed to escape, and gave the alarm to a Sioux village. The warriors of this settlement mounted horses at once, and proceeded to a place where a body of Crows had fortified themselves on Hart Butte. The Sioux charged upon the position twice, but were repulsed with a loss of five killed and twenty wounded. The last assault was made about sundown by the chief Spotted Eagle, who was killed. At this time the Sioux managed to overpower the Crows, and slaughtered every one of them in a hand-to-hand conflict, which lasted for nearly an hour. The Sioux lost seventeen killed and nearly eighty wounded. Over one hundred of the Crows were killed.

The letter also says that the Ogallalahs have sent out parties on a stealing expedition to the Platte. All the Indians arriving at the Cheyenne agency say that John Richards, a renegade half breed, has a great deal of influence and is doing all he can to make the redskins hostile to the whites.

L. D. Woodruff, junior editor of the Johnstown Democrat, having beaten the champion of Ebensburg, claims to be the champion checker player, thus far. Step this way, Mr. W., if you would rough it home again.

The Cambria Freeman says the 22d was celebrated in Ebensburg by a "parade of infantry—four women and one man all in a crowd together and each having an infant in arms." Whose infant had the man?

Our farmers would be the means of surprising the appetites of a great many of our people if they would only give them a chance to buy some butter. We hope they will soon try the experiment.

Narrow Escapes.

On the 19th inst., as Mr. Milliken, a farmer who resides near Crownover's Mill, in Barree township, this county, was crossing the fording on Stone Creek, near his residence, with a three horse team, the water being deep and the current strong from the late rain, it swept the wagon round and raised the bed and fortunately uncoupled it from the front part, and lodged the hind part and bed on a drift about twenty yards below the fording,—Mr. Milliken barely getting out with his team and front part of the wagon. On Monday morning, in attempting to recover the bed and the hind part of the wagon, the creek being still high, the current swept him under the drift, and had it not been for timely aid he would in all probability have been drowned.

This fording a good part of the year is not safe for teams and some of the citizens of Barree township for this reason petitioned the Court for a bridge but have had the petition ignored several times. Mr. Goss who has recently purchased the Crownover Mill property is now erecting a bridge at this fording at his own expense.

Hoaxed.

Some wag hoaxed the editor of the Newport News in regard to the shooting match thusly:

"A shooting match came off in Huntingdon, on Wednesday for seven hundred dollars, a gold pitcher, and a one hundred dollar silver pitcher. Colonel William Williams, of that town, won the first prize, the gold pitcher, by a string of five and a half inches in ten shots, off hand, sixty yards, and Harry C. Rohm, of 433 Market street, Philadelphia, won the silver pitcher, the second prize, six and one fourth inches, same distance, off hand.

The truth is that the match did come off Tuesday, for a silver pitcher only. Col. William Williams, of this place, won the prize, by a string of ten and a half inches, in ten shots, off hand, sixty yards. There was a goodly number of competitors, and the match passed off pleasantly. A Mr. Crum, from the lower end of the county, who shot for a bet with Mr. Williams and several others, afterwards, came off first beat. We did not learn that he was one of the competitors.

Challenge Accepted.

Some weeks ago, the Bellefonte Watchman published the names of five gentlemen who desired a game of checkers with any others in the State. This challenge is accepted by Mr. T. C. Fisher of this place, and he states that he will be happy to meet any one of the gentlemen named. Mr. G. W. G., although our best player, requests us not to state that he accepts the challenge; but we have no doubt that if any of the champions of other towns should visit our place, he would willingly play them a few social games to learn them a thing or two. Come on, gents.

THE 22D.—The 138th anniversary of Washington's Birthday, which according to the almanac was on Tuesday last, was celebrated in Huntingdon with more than usual eclat. In the morning about thirty fantastics, mounted on horses, and dressed in almost every conceivable style, paraded the streets, headed by a sled containing a band of music—and oh! such music! In the evening a ball was held in Yenter's hall.

☞ Summers & Reilly manufacture the celebrated Castillian Liniment, for Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and the renowned Root Caudy, for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary Affections.

Babies' Rights.

Who is to be the advocate of babies' rights? The poor things cannot speak for themselves, but when their teeth hurt them, they are fed; when they cry because a pin hurts them, they are fed; when they laugh, they are fed; when they can't sleep, they are rocked until their little brains reel; when they seem out of humor, they are dosed with paregoric and a host of other syrups and nostrums until they are stupefied; and woe be to them when they learn to walk—then they are dressed to make and receive "calls." If they romp, race, run, skip, scramble, toss, tumble, or do as a child should do, they are scolded and told to "put on airs," just like their mammas. O, for the good little babies of yore, and away with your puny, pruny, primpy pimps that a breath of good fresh air starts to coughing. We want the bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked, romping boy and girl, so that the world will be happier and children healthier. Physicians should have no occasion to doctor the babies; foolish papas and fashionable mammas should have no advice for the dear little creatures; but let them learn what is what, without the restraints that fashion imposes.

Books, fashion, and want of common sense, are killing the babies, and we now see but few who have not the parent's head on the child's shoulders, and many of them know more than their parents wish them to know. Do not let that boy of five years have his jumps and his races, but keep him constantly at his books, and before long you will see him sobering down and getting ready to study law, if he don't go to an untimely grave; do not let that girl of five have her dolls, romps and tumbles, but teach her to study her lessons and get ready for boarding school, and learn there to become the "belle of the period," and before long you will see her put away her childish things and learn the art of catching beaux and talking "high-falutin." Give the babies plenty of fresh air and exercise, and fewer books and dresses, and they will grow up to bless you and save you many a doctor bill.

More Bounty.

Soldiers who enlisted for ONE YEAR and were discharged by "competent authority" before the expiration of their term of service, are entitled to one hundred dollars bounty, under a recent Act of Congress and a decision of the Attorney General.

P. M. & M. S. LYTLE, Attorneys at Law, Huntingdon, Pa., are prepared to make applications for this bounty, and persons who are entitled to it can have it promptly collected by applying to them.

Other bills are pending before Congress, which when passed, will give bounties to a large number of persons who have not heretofore been entitled to them. It is proposed to give fifty dollars to the widow, children, father or mother, in the order named, of NINE MONTHS' soldiers who died or were killed in the service.

All soldiers and others who desire to know whether they are entitled to bounties can obtain the information by sending their discharges to or calling personally on P. M. & M. S. Lytle, at their office in Huntingdon. 2t

MESSRS. EDITORS:—A few days ago I received a note from the Commissioners' Attorney informing me I was in arrears in my duplicate as collector for Henderson township for 1862, in the sum of $1.89 County tax.

In reference to the above I would ask, How can such be? It is true I was appointed Collector for Henderson township in 1862 and received the duplicate, but in a few days afterward I enlisted as a volunteer and by permission from the Commissioners returned the duplicate as I had received it—collecting nothing. Afterward it was given to Mr. Jacob Hetrick, Sr., of the same mentioned township.—What disposition was made of it I am unprepared to say. How I can be in arrears I do not understand.

LECTURE.—Rev. Wm. B. Culliss, of Philadelphia, will lecture in the Court House this Tuesday evening, March 1, for the benefit of the Young Men's Christian Association. Subject "Appearances" Doors open at 7. Lecture to commence at 7:30.

While the above notice which was handed us speaks of this being a benefit for the Y. M. C. A, we are assured that there is nothing in it to prevent all our people, of all classes and denominations, from deriving equal benefit, and we hope there will be a full turnout.

☞ Several attempts, in past years, have been made to start a Building Association in this place, but from some cause or other, the projects fell through, and nobody feels like attempting the formation of another. Experience has proved, however, that they are paying institutions, are the poor man's savings bank, and are a means of promoting industry and enterprise in the town. Will some one take hold of the matter again?

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other in a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleanser of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreeboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

IV.

PREPARING TO FARM.

I write mainly for beginners—for young persons, and some not so young, who are looking to farming as the vocation to which their future years are to be given, by which their living is to be gained. In this chapter I would counsel young men who, not having been reared in personal contact with the daily and yearly round of a farmer's cares and duties, purpose henceforth to live by farming.

To these I would earnestly say, "No haste!" Our boys are in too great hurry to become men. They want to be bosses, before they have qualified themselves to be efficient journeymen. I have personally known several instances of young men, fresh from school or from some city vocation, buying or hiring a farm and undertaking to work it; and I cannot now recall a single instance in which the attempt has succeeded; while speedy failure has been the usual result. The assumption that farming is a rude, simple matter, requiring little intellect and less experience, has buried many a well-meaning youth under debts which the best efforts of several subsequent years will barely enable him to pay off. In my opinion, half our farmers now living would say, if questioned, that they might better have waited longer before buying or hiring a farm.

When I was ten years old, my father took a job of clearing off the mainly fallen and partially rotten timber—largely White Pine and Black Ash—from fifty acres of level and then swampy land, and he and his two boys gave most of the two ensuing years (1821-2) to the rugged task. When it was finished, I—a boy of twelve years—could have taken just such a tract of half-burned primitive forest as that was when we took hold of it, and cleared it by an expenditure of seventy to eighty per cent. of the labor actually bestowed upon that. I had learned, in clearing this, how to economize labor in any future undertaking of the kind; and so every one learns by experience who steadily observes and reflects. He must have been a very good farmer at the start, or a very poor one afterward, who cannot grow a thousand bushels of grain much cheaper at thirty years of age than he could at twenty.

To every young man who has had no farming experience, or very little, yet who means to make farming his vocation, I say, hire out, for the coming year, to the very best farmer who will give you anything like the value of your labor. Buy a few choice books (if you have them not already,) which treat of Geology, Chemistry, Botany, and the application of their truths in Practical Agriculture; give to these the closest and thoughtful attention of your few leisure hours; keep your eyes wide open, and set down in a note-book or pocket-diary each night a minute of whatever has been done on the farm on that day, making a note of each storm, shower, frost, hail, &c., and also of the date at which each planted crop requires tillage or is ripe enough to harvest, and ascertaining, so far as possible, what each crop produced on the farm has cost, and which of them all are produced at a profit, and which at a loss. At the year's end, hire again to the same or another good farmer and pursue the same course; and so do till you shall be twenty four or twenty-five years of age, which is young enough to marry, and quite young enough to undertake the management of a farm. By this time, if you have carefully saved and wisely invested your earnings, you will have several hundred dollars; and, if you do not choose to migrate to some region where land is very cheap, you will have found some one willing to sell you a small farm on credit, taking a long mortgage as security. Your money—assuming that you have only what you will have earned—will all be wanted to fix up your buildings, by a team and cow, with the few implements needed, and supply you with provisions till you can grow some. If you can begin thus experienced and full-handed, you may, by diligence combined with good fortune, begin to make payments on your mortgage at the close of your second year.

I hate debt as profoundly as any one can, but I do not consider this really running into debt. One has more land than he needs, and does not need his pay for it forthwith; another wants land, but lacks the means of present payment. They two enter into an agreement mutually advantageous, whereby the poorer has the present use and ultimate fee simple of the farm in question, in consideration of the payment of certain sums are duly stipulated. Technically, the buyer becomes a debtor; practically, I do not regard him as such until payments fall due for which he is unable promptly to meet. Let him vigorously avoid all other debt, and he need not shrink from or be ashamed of this.

I have a high regard for scientific attainments; I wish every young man were thoroughly instructed in the sciences which underlie the art of farming. But all the learning on earth though it may powerfully help to make a good farmer, would not of itself make one. When a young man has learned all that seminaries and lectures, books and cabinets, can teach him, he still needs practice and experience to make him a good farmer.

"But wouldn't you have a young man study in order that he may become a good farmer?"

If he has money, yes. I believe a youth worth four or five thousand dollars may wisely spend a tenth of his means in attending lectures, and even courses of study, at any good seminary where Natural Sciences is taught and applied to Agriculture.—But life is short at best; and he who has no means, or very little, cannot really afford to attend even an Agricultural College. He can acquire so much of science as is indespensable in the cheaper way I have indicated. He cannot wisely consent to spend the best years of his life in getting ready to live.

He who has already mastered the art of farming, and has adequate means, may of course buy a farm to-morrow, though he be barely or not quite of age. He has little to learn from me. Yet I think even such have waited, and deliberated, and garnered the treasures of experience, before the took the grave step of buying their future homes; with regard to which I shall make some suggestions in my next.—New York Tribune.

Wit and Humor.

"How long can a fool live?" asked a lawyer of a witness. "I don't know," replied the witness; "how long have you lived?"

'Mrs. Smith, I wish to speak to you in private. Permit me to take you apart for a few moments.' 'Certainly sir, if you'll promise to put me together again.'

The Hartford Courant tantalizes its readers with this atrocity: 'Have you heard of the man who got shot? Got shot? No; how did he get shot? He bought 'em.'

Mrs. Jones, a farmer's wife, says:—I believe I've got the tenderest-hearted boys in the world. I can't tell one of them to fetch a pail of water, but that he'll burst out a-crying.'

A lawyer and a doctor were walking arm-in-arm, a wag said to a friend, "these two are just equal to one highwayman.—"Why?" was the response, "Because it is a lawyer and a doctor—your money or your life!"

A shopkeeper had, for his virtue, obtained the name of the "Little Rascal." A stranger asked him how this appellation had been given to him.—"To distinguish me from the rest of my trade," said he, "who are all great rascals."

Some Indian tribes have the beautiful supposition that a bird loosed on the grave of their beloved, will fly away to the spirit land, and never close it wings till it has delivered its precious burden of affection to the departed.

Not long since an ingenious individual managed to get drunk free of expense, almost daily, in the streets of London, by falling down in a fit, with a small placard on his breast, 'Don't bleed me, but give me a glass of hot brandy and water.'

'Great heavens!' cried a bar-room bully of Denver city, who shot a stranger for declining to take a drink with him—'Great heavens! am I never to come to Denver without being obliged to kill somebody.'

A Paris policeman being summoned into the presence of a man who had just shot himself dead, after severely wounding a lady, displayed his anxiety to arrive at the facts in the case by excitedly demanding of the only surviving witness of the fray, "Did this man kill himself before he fired at this lady, or afterwards?"

The Maine Supreme Judicial Court has just tried a suit on a promissory note. The plaintiff claimed that the indorsement of the note was: 'I back this note holden for debt and costs.' The defendant claimed that the endorsement was: 'I back this not holden for debt and costs,' and that the letter 'o' had been added. Verdict was rendered for the defendant.

In an English Court of Law lately, a witness was called to attest to a person's insanity. 'I know he's mad,' said the witness, because the poor fellow imagines himself to be the prophet Jeremiah.' 'Do you consider that to be a proof of mental derangement?' asked the examining counsel. 'I should rather think so,' confidently replied the witness, 'seeing that I am the prophet Jeremiah.'

This is the way in which a South Sea Islander settled a case of conscience. The missionary had rebuked him for the sin of polygamy, and he was much grieved. After a day or two he returned, his face radient with joy. "Me all right now. One wife. Me very good Christian." "What did you do with the other?" asked the missionary. "Me eat her up."

☞ Women charm, as a general thing, in proportion as they are good. A plain face with a heart behind it, is worth a world of heartless beauty.—Gentlemen who have tried both, uniformly agree to this.

LORILLARD'S "EUREK A" SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; wherever introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerchaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S "Yacht Club" SMOKING TOBACCO, anti-nervous in its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, hence one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. McGUIRE'S

SPANISH HAIR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR, And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S

Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances. This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it at once relieves headache.
